Summary

- Machine learning has been applied to text retrieval since many decades ago (e.g., Rocchio feedback)
- Recent use of machine learning is driven by
  - Large-scale training data available
  - Need for combining many features
  - Need for robust ranking (again spams)
- Modern Web search engines all use some kind of ML technique to combine many features to optimize ranking
- Learning to rank is still an active research topic